Enjoyed hearing from all of you who spoke earlier today. It is amazing how much we are accomplishing on so many fronts.

Since some of you may not be familiar with the Examiner's Watching Investigative Team that I mentioned today, may I take the liberty of providing some useful links? Here's a link to our latest story on the cronyism, corruption and favoritism behind the $2 billion Obamacare co-ops being established by HHS to compete against the private market. Here's the second story we published on the issue and here's the first.

And just in case you missed our "The Obama You Don't Know" series from last September, here's a link to it. We exposed all kinds of previously unknown stuff about Obama that is directly relevant to what he's doing now. Fox did a great segment on it, too.

Corruption is a bipartisan problem. Exposing it is a trans-partisan obligation.

You can have Big Government or you can have Transparent Government, but you can't have Big, Transparent Government.
